

Christopher Phillipson

Christopher Phillipson é professor de Sociologia e Gerontologia Social na Universidade de Manchester, Reino Unido, onde é co-diretor do “Manchester Institute for Collaborative Research on Ageing”. Publicou vários livros sobre questões relacionadas com a dimensão social do envelhecimento e a gerontologia crítica dos quais se destacam os mais recentes: Age-Friendly Cities and Communities: A Global Perspective (Coedited, Policy Press, 2018), Precarity and Ageing: Understanding Risk and Insecurity in Later Life (Co-edited, Policy Press, 2020), Covid-19, Inequality and Older People (co-authored, Policy Press, 2023) and Ageing in Place in Urban Environments: Critical Perspectives (co-authored, Routledge Books, 2023).

Christopher Phillipson is Professor of Sociology and Social Gerontology at the University of Manchester, UK, where he is a co-director of the Manchester Institute for Collaborative Research into Ageing. He has published several books on issues relating to social aspect of ageing and critical gerontology. His most recent books include: Age-Friendly Cities and Communities: A Global Perspective (Coedited, Policy Press, 2018), and Precarity and Ageing: Understanding Risk and Insecurity in Later Life (Co-edited, Policy Press, 2020), Covid-19, Inequality and Older People (co-authored, Policy Press, 2023) and Ageing in Place in Urban Environments: Critical Perspectives (co-authored, Routledge Books, 2023).